REGISTRATION FROM 8:30 am

Nelle Frances is author of the Ben and His Helmet series of fiction books for children with Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD), Special Needs educator and parent of a child with Asperger's Syndrome

Nelle's workshop demonstrates how a person with Autism Spectrum Disorder's (ASD) response to sensory stimuli influences their behaviour, emotional development and academic progress.

Workshop outcomes include being able to:

- ✓ Identify sensory stimuli
- ✓ Identify which senses are affected
- ✓ Identify indications of sensory sensitivity
- ✓ Recognise sensory agitation
- ✓ Understand the connection between sensory issues + behaviour
- ✓ Establish accommodations for ASD child

Workshop meets criteria of Standards 4,6,7 & 10 of the QCT Professional Standards for Queensland Teachers

Professional Development Contribution (5.5 hours)

This high-impact training session includes a complete description of AS characteristics– using anecdotal examples to “make the pieces fit” the picture of your child. Nelle offers insight into the processing differences and changing perspectives of individuals with Autism and Asperger's, and provides examples of resources and tools for use at home and in the classroom.

You'll learn effective strategies for dealing with the challenging behaviour that is sometimes displayed by AS children and discover why success oriented learning using positive reinforcement works for these children.

Nelle will guide you in using her Ben and His Helmet books within the curriculum and as a tool at home to help the AS child gain the skills required for emotional regulation – self assessment, self monitoring and self management.
